1. The information provider hereby grants, donates and conveys to the University Library of Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München (hereafter referred to as “University Library”) the non-exclusive rights to make the donated information and/or materials publicly accessible via one of their digital repositories for use by the DFG-funded digital research portal, “German (Refugee) Rabbis after 1933 (MIRA)” (an outcome of the DFG Project, “Trials and Transmissions: Mapping the Legacy of the German Rabbinate after 1933”) for the duration of the copy right protection and without geographical restriction. The information provider also grants the right to make copies of the information and/or materials for this purpose, and the right to store the donated information and/or materials, and any related abstracts, collection descriptions, and metadata, in electronic databases and to make them available to users by means of digital or other transmission technology, whether in the context of services that require retrieval by the users or in services in which use is made on the initiative of the repository, including all transmission paths (cable, radio, satellite, etc.) and protocols (TCP/IP, http, ftp, etc.).

This release also covers all present and future copyright interests in the donated materials including the right to reproduce such materials in digital copies (audio, video), and on the Internet, and to distribute copies (in the aforementioned forms) to the public, to present or display the work publicly, to prepare derivative works thereof, and to have others do so for research purposes. All publications are released under the license CC-BY-SA and have to be cited under that license and as outlined under 6.

2. The University Library may transfer the rights granted by this agreement in whole or in part to third parties and grant simple rights of use (§31 Abs. 2 UrhG, the rights of use granted by this agreement) to other repositories or institutions without requiring separate consent from the information provider.<sup>3</sup>

3. The information provider assures that the electronic publication of the donated materials does not infringe any third-party rights and undertakes to indemnify the University Library against any third-party claims arising from the infringement of copyright, an exclusive right of use, or from the infringement of a personal right through the publication of the donated information and/or materials held by MIRA Digital Collection. The information provider shall reimburse all costs arising from an infringement for which she/he is responsible.

4. The information provider retains the rights of use to the donated materials and may dispose of it in any other way, provided that this does not restrict the rights he/she has granted to the University Library in this declaration.

5. The information provider agrees to the public use of the donated materials, including the aforementioned forms of reproduction under the following conditions:

☐ With no restrictions

☐ Closed for a period of ____ years, as of the date of provision stated below

☐ Open to researchers at the discretion of the University Library

6. Copies of digital archival and library collections shared with MIRA Digital Collection at LMU University Library (to secure the long-term use and sustainability of such materials for the research portal "German (Refugee) Rabbis after 1933") will display the respective documents' original archival provenance and call numbers. The research portal will highlight that such documents should be considered original items belonging to said collection or archive and must be cited as such in any research product or publication. MIRA Digital Collection will fully credit the institutions sharing such materials with LMU for the purpose of the construction of this research portal.

<sup>3</sup> This refers to a potential merger of library institutions and is exclusively geared towards maintaining the long-term function of the MIRA research portal.

7. The information provider understands that the donated materials and works reproduced from it are not protected by archival or scholar's privilege (since no such policy exists) and therefore will not be protected from subpoena.
